Today, they live in regular houses and huts, with only a few still maintaining the traditional long hair, attire, and beards. This session is set up with a few Indigenous people for a photo session in their small hut and the surrounding area, which is away from the regular touristic Vedda village nearby, where no tourists are around. This technique is mainly practiced during March to April when fish are abundant. This session is set up with special permission from the Department of Archaeology to enter the ruins at sunrise, with no tourists allowed at this time, and includes featuring young Buddhist monks for the photo session. This is an organized photo session capturing ancient architecture of Sri Lanka, adding liveliness to the ruins by photographing young Buddhist monks in front of them.

Tea Pluckers On Tea Field In Dambethenna

The task of plucking tea is traditionally done by women, who expertly pluck by hand to ensure the highest quality of leaves. Hand plucking allows workers to select only the top two leaves and a bud from the tea plant. The work is physically demanding, as tea pluckers spend long hours in the fields, moving through rows of bushes. In Sri Lanka, pluckers gather 15 to 20 kilograms of tea leaves daily. This is a candid photo session capturing the portraits of tea pluckers in the tea fields, showcasing their colorful clothes and traditional tea plucking methods used to process Ceylon tea.

Tea Workers' Village In Dambethenna

Sri Lankan tea workers are primarily Indian Tamils, brought by the British during the colonial period to work on plantations. Many of these workers were transported from southern India to meet the labor demands of the burgeoning tea industry, which became a major export commodity. Today, the descendants of these laborers continue to reside in tea plantation villages, often among the most economically deprived areas in the country. This is a candid photo session capturing close up portraits of the villagers, especially children, who live in very basic line houses that provide a colorful backdrop.

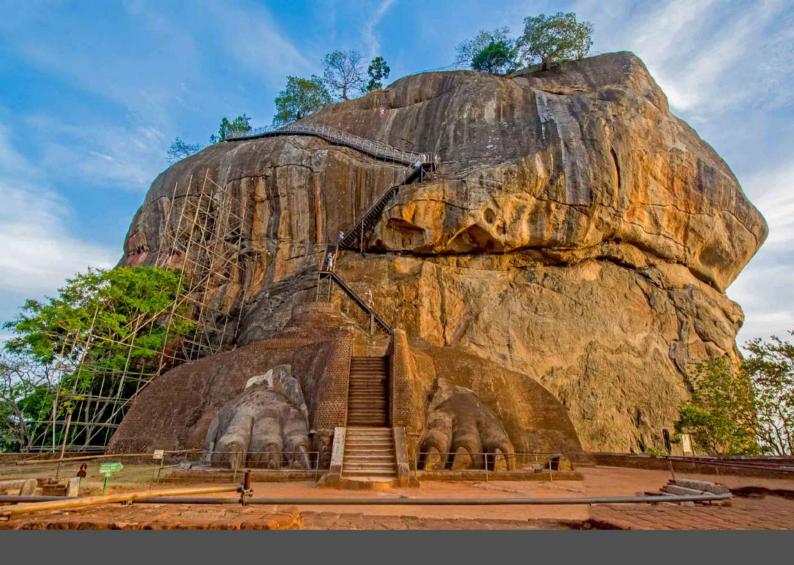

Traditional Dancers In Gadaladenyia

There are three main styles of Sri Lankan classical dance: the Kandyan dances of the hill country, the low country dances of the southern region, and the Sabaragamuwa dances of the Ratnapura region. These classical dance forms differ in their movements and the shape of the drums used. This session is set up with a few Sri Lankan traditional dancers and drummers in costumes from a dancing academy, bringing them to a nearby temple and requesting some dance performances and poses. This is an organized photo session capturing the dance poses of Sri Lankan traditional dancers in colorful costumes.

Jeep Safari At Minneriya National Park In Minneriya (Half Day Safari)

Minneriya national park, where you'll witness the splendid sight of around 80 to 100 majestic Sri Lankan elephants gathering in grass fields and near the reservoir. As you traverse the park's landscapes, you'll encounter herds of elephants, often led by protective matriarchs, surrounded by playful calves who stick close to their mothers for guidance and safety. As evening falls, the elephants become more active, engaging in playful displays, trumpeting, and socializing with one another. This unique safari offers an unforgettable opportunity to observe these magnificent creatures in their natural habitat.

Ancient Rock Fortress In Sigiriya

The Ancient Rock Fortress in Sigiriya, Sri Lanka, is a remarkable historical site built on a massive granite rock. This fortress, also known as Lion Rock, dates back to the 5th century and was once a royal palace. It is famous for its impressive frescoes and large lion statue at the entrance. The site is also home to ancient inscriptions, mirror walls, and pathways that provide insight into the lives of those who once inhabited it. The top of the rock offers stunning views of the surrounding landscape, making it a unique architectural marvel. Sigiriya is also recognized as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

The ancient temple dates back over 2,000 years and is recognized as a UNESCO World Heritage Site for its cultural and architectural significance. Located atop a large granite rock, it consists of five main caves filled with impressive statues, murals, and religious paintings. Scenic Train Journey From Haputale To Nanu Oya

This scenic train ride offers a breathtaking journey through the mountains of Sri Lanka. The views on both sides of the tracks are spectacular, showcasing lush landscapes and vibrant greenery. The train winds through hills, providing glimpses of farms, villages, and vast tea plantations. If you step into third class, you will have the chance to interact with locals who enjoy chatting. Leaning out of the train door provides some of the best views and an exhilarating feeling, but be cautious. Avoid extending your limbs outside the train at the wrong moment, as low-hanging trees and tunnels pose danger.

Damro Tea Factory In Labookellie

Sri Lanka is famous for its high quality tea, and the country has a long history of tea cultivation dating back to the 19th century. Inside the tea factory, the step by step tea making process can be seen. Fresh tea leaves are first withered to reduce moisture, then rolled to release natural oils. The leaves are then fermented to develop flavor and color before being dried to stop the oxidation process. After drying, the leaves are sorted by quality. The whole process is carefully monitored to ensure top-quality tea. At the end, high-quality, factory made Sri Lankan tea, known for its rich taste and aroma, can be purchased.
